Published on 01 October 2019 by Max Veenhuizen Kailis Fish Market Cafe is Being Relunched as a Contemporary Seafood Market The Fremantle Fishing Boat Harbour stalwart will reopen with a new 80s-inspired look, dedicated raw bar and focus on underutilised fish and seafood. "He worked so much." This September, Kailis writes the restaurant's next chapter when unveils the new, updated Kailis Fish Market Cafe with dedicated fry, raw bar and barbecue sections together with bar and sweet sections. Under the guidance of executive chef and partner Scott Bridger these classical and modern cooking styles produce timeless dishes presented in an eclectic style. To help you find some stellar local drops, we've teamed up with some of Perth's best sommeliers to bring you this epic guide to the best local wines to sip and gift this Christmas. Also: hello uni waffles. We are guided by a 'love your locals' ethos which means our menu is a celebration of the best seasonal produce our Perth-based suppliers have to offer. We receive fresh ingredients daily and our food is prepared through a fusion of modern and primitive cooking techniques including smoking, pickling and wood firing. Read more... The 20 year old cafe underwent renovation within it's 80's building envelope with the venue only closing for 14 days for works to be completed. Almost five years ago, a young, spritely Manifs (then of InContro) promised Coomer he would help the former-Pata Negra stalwart in the kitchen at 6.30am the next morning. Read More Published on 04 March 2021 by Raquel de Brito - The West Australian Female sommeliers are making their mark in WA with their distinctive palates and approaches to wine WA women are smashing stereotypes and redefining the wine industry one award-winning wine list at a time. Published on 29 January 2020 by Arylene Westlake-Jennings THE last time Kailis Fremantle head chef Peter Manifs and Island Market culinary director David Coomer worked together, it didn't quite pan out as expected. George Kailis was 12 when he first pulled on the gumboots at Kailis Fish Market Cafe, the restaurant his father Victor opened at Fremantle Fishing Boat Harbour in December 1986. Manifs did turn up the next day, only he was late and allegedly sporting a hefty hangover. That's why you will never find anything frozen on our menus. To celebrate reopening, Kailis' Fish Market has launched a new limited-run snack: a decadent fried oyster and caviar roll. Bookmark this for the next time you're heading to the bottle shop. "I only started [working] so young because it was the only way that I could see my dad," he says. Plus, there's $6 pints, $6 fish wings and more. Published on 15 October 2020 by Anna Franklyn - Urban List Perth Load Up On Lobsters With WA's Biggest Seafood Platter If you're into seafood and can't go past a good platter, you'll want to get yourself to Kailis Fishmarket Cafe Fremantle for their brand new Holy Ship seafood platter. That means that a meal starring some of the west's best fish'n'chips and a crowd-pleasing drinks list that punches well above its weight is back on the cards. Read More... Published on 06 October 2020 by Broadsheet This Freo icon has reopened for dine-in customers. Published on 17 December 2021 by Let's face it, whether buying a bottle for yourself, for an event you're heading to or as a special gift, our vino consumption goes way up around this of year, so we figured we may as well support the amazing local winemakers we've got here in WA while we're at it. Since our food looks (almost) as good as at tastes, our guests can look forward to feasting their eyes before conquering their appetites. Working within the site's existing conditions and architectural features, a design brief was derived that was sympathetic to the beige brick building with arched openings and windows, was casual yet smart enough to increase night trade, and was fresh and modern without being kitsch or on trend.... This beast is designed to feed four to eight people, depending on how hungry you are, and will need to be booked in advance, so round up your mates stat.
